

Ten years ago, Robb defeated thyroid cancer just ten days after his wife received a clean bill of health after battling leukemia for 2 ½ years. It was then that he decided to start Cancer Fit, our nonprofit organization, providing free exercise and wellness programs for adult and child cancer survivors to help alleviate the long-term effects of treatment. In 2016, he became his wife's primary caregiver after she suffered a massive stroke. For the past 6 years, he has been the sole provider for his family; working full-time at Pepperdine, caring for her as needed and working with pediatric cancer patients in his spare time through their organization, all while still making time for their two young adult children every day and helping keep Elle active as well. Living an active and healthy lifestyle has always been important to Robb and his family, so when Robb was diagnosed with an aggressive lung cancer this June, they were devastated and blindsided, to say the least. Treatment is harsh and intense but Robb is doing this with strength and courage, and still making time to inspire others, especially our pediatric cancer families.
